

Man: Hey, look at the deductions on this paycheque – $480.17 !

Woman: I know, isn't it awful, what are they doing with all our taxes?

TV Commercial: Coming soon to a theatre near you...

Son: Dad, can I get a new game for my Nintendo?

Man: Uh, maybe, what's it cost?

Doorbell Rings Twice: Howdy there neighbours, can I put one of our candidate's signs on your lawn?

Daughter: Mommy, could you drive me to Nancy's house?

Newspaper Ad: Buy, Buy, Buy

Woman: OK, in a few minutes...

Man & Woman: What were we talking about?

Oh, I don't remember... where's my wallet... where're the car keys... Dinner's at 6:30... by the way, I think the van needs a new muffler... Don't forget I'm volunteering at the food bank for three hours tomorrow... Jane and Glen are coming over for a barbeque on Sunday... Johnny's practice starts at 7 tomorrow morning... and Kristin's recital is at 7 tomorrow night...

... wait, I have to work late tomorrow – I need the hours!

Politicians just LOVE these people!

The Overwhelmson family, here, and millions like them, and singles and the unemployed and people in every walk of life are why our proud motto is: We Respect the Wisdom, Fairness and Generosity of Canadians.

We know most Canadians don't have the time or interest to take care of government – that's why we elect politicians – but we understand that virtually everyone wants their government to be as honest and hardworking as they are. Mutual respect is what is oft-times missing from the equation – we will try our best to change that.
